F O R E W O R D

The sixth edition of the Directory of North American Protestant Foreign Mission Agencies is in the succession of those published in 1953, 1956, 1958, 1960 and 1962. In this edition extensive revisions of various kinds have been made.

The Missionary Research Library recognizes, and promotes, the "six continent" view of the need and task in mission. However, for historical and practical reasons, this Directory deals only with agencies in North America which carry on work outside of the United States and Canada.

Within the bounds set for it, every care was taken to make the Directory both accurate and complete. However, the material represents, as nearly as possible, the replies as given by the missionary organizations themselves to the questionnaire sent to them, and this circumstance inevitably poses some problems in interpretation, both on the part of the agencies in replying to the MRL questionnaire and on the part of the MRL in using those replies. Therefore, it should be borne in mind constantly that this study is a report of replies, and cannot in the nature of things be considered to reflect all of North American Protestant missionary effort, or to represent precise parallelisms in the reporting of statistics, especially those on finances.

The number of agencies included in this Directory, by type, are as follows:

Denominational sending boards or affiliated societies	150
Interdenominational and non-denominational societies	99
American branches of international and interdenominational sending societies	17
American boards or committees of missionary institutions	10
Specialized services, non-sending agencies	33
Supporting, fund-raising and fund-transmitting agencies	42
Associations of missionary and church agencies	6
Total	357

Relative to the fifth edition (1962), this represents a drop of 34 in the number in the first category, of 18 in the second category, of 17 in the fifth and 3 in the last category, but an increase of 4 in the sixth category. The total represents 68 fewer than two years ago, when 425 (not 427) were listed.

Many factors explain the above circumstance, but three explanations predominate. One is that whereas hitherto several of the functional units related to the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches were listed independently, these now are all incorporated under a single number (353). A second explanation is that a thorough scrutiny was made of agencies previously listed, and several were eliminated on the ground that they never had properly belonged in this directory. A third major explanation is that whereas the last edition listed a number of "Direct Support" missions with no board or agency but only a "forwarding agent" in North America, in this edition no listing is made unless there is some formal organization in North America, on the principle that this is a directory of agencies, not of all missionary work originating in North America for service outside the United States and Canada. In addition to these reasons, in a few instances mergers (of Churches or of missionary agencies) have contributed to the fact that a smaller number of agencies is listed in this edition.

The boundaries set for the directory are such that agencies which work only in Alaska and Hawaii are not included, even though these territories were often viewed as "foreign mission" areas before they became States of the U.S.A. On the other hand, in a very few instances we list a "home mission" agency because de facto it has work outside the United States and Canada as well as within these two countries. This principle also affects the listing of members of some of the Missionary Associations (Section VIII), since some of these have members which do not work outside of North America. In other words, our listing of members of Associations is not necessarily a listing of all the members but only of those with work outside the United States and Canada.

Some agencies have missionaries serving in countries other than those listed as fields of the given agency, usually in some cooperative or special venture, but this has not been indicated in the cases of such boards because to do so would make the Directory too complex. In so far as we know, the statistics on the number of missionaries under appointment, in such instances, is included in the total given for the particular board. This, of course, means that the number of missionaries serving a given board on the fields listed for that board may be smaller than the total number of missionaries under appointment by that board.

Two years ago tables on personnel and finances were published as a Statistical Section of the directory. On occasions earlier, similar information was collected in conjunction with the preparation of the directory but was published separately. This kind of data was not requested or compiled this year, and such statistical information therefore is not being published either in this Directory or separately from it.

Effort has been made to avoid duplication of statistics where one agency channels its funds and/or personnel through another agency (usually a woman's board channelling through the general board of the same denomination). We may not have been aware of all such instances, but wherever such information was known, it has been enclosed in parentheses.

No attempt has been made in this edition to report the number of national workers related to the work abroad of the North American agencies.

As indicated above, hitherto several of the functional units of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches have been listed separately. The re-structuring of the National Council of Churches affords the opportunity to combine all such units under the heading of the new Division of Overseas Ministries. Detailed information as to the format of the new Division is given so that an accurate and full overall picture of the new structuring may be gained.

With reference to the listing of member agencies of the Division of Overseas Ministries of the National Council of Churches (Section VIII), special attention is called to the fact that it contains only the members of the Division of Foreign Missions, NCCCUSA, as of June 16, 1964; it does not list the supporting or related members of what has been Church World Service, Inc. We had hoped to include this list but in the re-structuring process this information was not available at the time this Directory went to press.

Attention is also drawn to the fact that in Section VIII, there are member agencies listed for some of the Associations which are not in the body of the Directory because there was no response on their part to the MRL questionnaire and correspondence.

Special mention should be made of a new kind of index added to this edition. This is the Alphabetical List of Churches. In this index the numbers refer to page numbers. In all other instances, numbers refer to the serial numbers given to the agencies.

In the index by geographical fields, when the agency reporting to the MRL did not specify particular countries but only a general area, e.g. "Africa", a category was used which we have titled "/area/ undifferentiated by countries".

In the listing of the Professors of Missions, we have adopted as a criterion the listing only of those teaching in theological seminaries, divinity schools of universities, or other graduate-level institutions. We are conscious that the use of such a criterion has its drawbacks and weaknesses. On the other hand, it is increasingly evident that it would be most difficult to discover and list all who do some teaching in the field of missions in colleges, Bible Schools, and other undergraduate institutions, and the criterion adopted seems to be the most objective, equitable, and generally satisfactory.

Even though care has been taken to assure accuracy and completeness, undoubtedly there are errors, omissions, or wrong inclusions. We will appreciate it if mistakes are called to our attention. This Directory, the most comprehensive of its kind, is known to an increasingly wider constituency, and is used extensively by secular organizations and individuals as well as by church and missionary organizations. We therefore want it to be as up to date and correct as possible.

We wish to express our gratitude to all the organizations and individuals who furnished the information requested of them, for we know that it is a time-consuming process to complete questionnaires. We regret that in some cases even several follow-up letters did not elicit a response. In some such instances we have listed the agency, giving only basic information drawn from the 1962 edition of this directory, and have so indicated; in other instances we were too uncertain about the situation to list the agency in this edition at all.

Miss Helen L. Bailey, Research Assistant, has done the major work on this Directory. We express special thanks to her, as well as appreciation to other members of the staff of the Missionary Research Library who assisted in various ways.

We are indebted to the Servicenter of the National Council of Churches, especially to Mr. Walter Nubel, for the excellent printing and binding of the Directory.

Branch Office: Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP), 117 West Lexington Ave., Elkhart, Indiana 46515.

*CROP is a component of the Material Resources and Services Program of the Church World Service Department.

Specialized Ministries Department
Executive Director, Irene A. Jones, M.R.E., M.A., Ph.D.

The Department of Specialized Ministries combines and coordinates the functional and service units which have been brought into being to cooperate with overseas Christian councils, or councils of churches, and to assist in the provision of ministries called for by the developing indigenous churches in Asia, Africa, and Latin America, or in the service of USA citizens who are living abroad. The units and their services are described below:

Agricultural Missions - Rural Development Program /See also No. 277/
Director, J. Benton Rhoades, B.A.
Associate Director, Rene A. Ryter

The purpose of this program is to give help to North American Protestant churches in their efforts to provide a Christian witness and service for rural people around the world through improved food production, rural community development, home improvement and nutrition, and the strengthening of rural church life.

It operates under a program and policy committee composed of designated representatives of Protestant mission agencies, designated representatives of Protestant service agencies, and selected persons of competence in the fields of agriculture and rural development.

The office is responsible for working relationships between the Division of Overseas Ministries, NCCCUSA and Agricultural Missions Inc.

Associated Mission Medical Office (AMMO)
Director, Eva J. Weddigen, M.D.
Assistant to Director, Edith B. Simon, M.A.
Staff Physician, Esther B. Ames, M.D.

The Associated Mission Medical Office was organized in August 1933 by six major mission boards in response to the need for a more specialized, experienced and systematized medical care of missionaries on furlough and for the health appraisal of new candidates. It is now rendering this service to fourteen mission boards and occasionally seeing missionaries of more than ten non-member boards. Normally the staff consists of four physicians who have served on the field as medical missionaries, two nurses, two laboratory technicians, and seven other staff workers.

Last year 1,575 individuals were examined in the office and about 2,000 examinations made in other cities in the United States were reviewed and evaluated by the staff physicians.

The operating cost of AMMO in 1963 was $156,100, prorated among the member boards on the basis of the actual value of the service rendered.

Christian Medical Council for Overseas Work (CMC)
Director, Frederick G. Scovel, M.D.

The Christian Medical Council for Overseas Work is an advisory and consultative agency for the assistance and enhancement of all medical mission activities in and out of the NCCCUSA. The Council also assists missionary physicians, nurses and other personnel as well as the national medical staff by sending professional material and books, and in the shipment of drugs from Interchurch Medical Assistance. The Council also assists national physicians and nurses seeking hospital positions in this country.

Churchmen Overseas Program
Director, Raymond A Gray, B.D., S.T.M., D.D.
Associate Director, Duncan D. MacBryde, B.D., Ph.D.

The Program for Churchmen Overseas is divided into three functions:

Overseas Union Churches. More than a hundred English-language churches in non-English-speaking countries are related to this office. They are almost all interdenominational, international and interracial. Each is fully autonomous, this unit exercising no control over it. The office provides extensive personnel assistance, provides certain financial services and grants, and encourages fellowship with similar congregations throughout the world.

American Laymen Overseas. This portion of the Program is designed to provide Christian guidance and direction for the approximately one percent of the U.S. population which currently lives overseas, and several million Americans who travel overseas each year. Training institutes for laymen have been held in the U.S.A., and at overseas centers in cooperation with other Christians in the area. Printed materials are also produced.

Ministry to Service Personnel in the Far East. The Committee seeks to find ways whereby U.S. military personnel may relate themselves to the national Christians and churches in Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan and Hong Kong. Service Centers provide home-like recreation facilities for service men, guide service, conducted tours, information service, and an opportunity to spend time in Christian homes and churches.

Ecumenical Scholarship Exchange
Director, Leonard K. L. Ching, B.A.

The Ecumenical Scholarship Exchange was established in 1946. It cooperates with the Scholarship Program of the World Council of Churches. Candidates from Europe and Africa are selected by the Scholarship Committee in Geneva, upon recommendation of their respective National Committees; those from Asia, Latin America and elsewhere are selected by National Christian Councils in direct negotiation with the Exchange. The scholarship program aims to strengthen the work and to enrich the common life of the churches in all lands by an exchange of potential leaders and by providing students with larger opportunities for study and experience.

Radio, Visual Education and Mass Communication Committee (RAVEMCCO)
Director, Barnerd M. Luben, B.D., Th.M., M.A., D.D.

It is RAVEMCCO's purpose to assist churches in Asia, Africa, and Latin America in cooperative use of Broadcasting and audio-visual tools for evangelism and Christian education. USA and Canadian denominations are related through RAVEMCCO to broadcasting and audio-visual ministries, including 7 Christian radio stations, in 24 countries. The productions of Christian Council centers in these countries include dramatic films, filmstrips, picture-story cards, records, radio and TV programs, and projectors. Income through mission boards in 1963: $714,012; overseas appropriations: $609,741. Periodical: Sight-Sound (bi-mo).

IX. INDEX OF MISSIONARY AGENCIES BY GEOGRAPHICAL FIELDS OF SERVICE

The numbers in this index refer to the serial numbers of the agencies in the body of the Directory.

"Field of service" may be interpreted in various ways: a country or territory to which missionaries are sent; a country with which church workers are exchanged (as in the case of some European countries); a country where some form of evangelistic, medical, educational or social activity is carried on with American church personnel or help; or a country to which the American missionary agency sends funds or interchurch aid but not personnel.

The United States and Canada, being the "sending countries" in this Directory, are not listed in the Index by fields. In other words, this Directory does not cover home or national missions. Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are listed.

The political map is rapidly changing. We have not used the old colonial designations of areas or territories but only the name of the independent country or territory as recognized by the United Nations and in the latest maps.
